

Your Mission . . .

YOUR MISSION:

- a. Address British economic anxieties, e.g. the interruption of trade and the Southern blockade.
- b. Prevent Confederate agents from gaining diplomatic recognition and material aid.
- c. Handle concerns about status of slavery.
- d. Maintain an open and harmonious relationship with the government of Great Britain.

YOUR MISSION:

- a. Address British economic anxieties, e.g. the interruption of trade and the Southern blockade.
- b. Prevent Confederate agents from gaining diplomatic recognition and material aid.
- c. Handle concerns about status of slavery.
- d. Maintain an open and harmonious relationship with the government of Great Britain.

YOUR MISSION:

- a. Address British economic anxieties, e.g. the interruption of trade and the Southern blockade.
- b. Prevent Confederate agents from gaining diplomatic recognition and material aid.
- c. Handle concerns about status of slavery.
- d. Maintain an open and harmonious relationship with the government of Great Britain.

YOUR MISSION:

- a. Address British economic anxieties, e.g. the interruption of trade and the Southern blockade.
- b. Prevent Confederate agents from gaining diplomatic recognition and material aid.
- c. Handle concerns about status of slavery.
- d. Maintain an open and harmonious relationship with the government of Great Britain.

YOUR MISSION:

- a. Address British economic anxieties, e.g. the interruption of trade and the Southern blockade.
- b. Prevent Confederate agents from gaining diplomatic recognition and material aid.
- c. Handle concerns about status of slavery.
- d. Maintain an open and harmonious relationship with the government of Great Britain.

YOUR MISSION:

- a. Address British economic anxieties, e.g. the interruption of trade and the Southern blockade.
- b. Prevent Confederate agents from gaining diplomatic recognition and material aid.
- c. Handle concerns about status of slavery.
- d. Maintain an open and harmonious relationship with the government of Great Britain.